THE GREAT SHOW

UNDER THREE ENORMOUS TENTS.

Living Curiosities in Groups-Splendid Attractions -Chang, the Giant, and Tom Thumb-Elephants Big and Little Kangaroos-P. T. Barnum Himself.

Yesterday the greatest aggregation of iving curiosities, the most stupendous combination of arenic attractions, the most gigantic organization ever placed upon the road, being the consolidation of three large and distinct companies into one grand unity, which has been justly denominated "The Greatest Show on Earth," with the experienced veteran, P. T. Burnum, at its head, gave its first performance in Washington. The above language is in the high-sounding style of the flaming handbills which heralded the approach of Barnum's Circus and Menagerie, and yet, after having inspected the multitude and variety of the natural curiosities and witnessed the two hours' exhibition in the vast tent in which three rings are constantly occupied by skillful artists, it can hardly be said to be too extravagant to express the immensity of the exhibition.

Through the courtesy of Dr. Thomas, the press agent of Mr. Barnum, representatives of THE RE-PUBLICAN and the other city papers were early on the ground, and had an opportunity of carefully examining the large menageric, under the chaperonage of the Doctor, who seems to know the whole show, from

TON THUMB and his wife to the monster elephant "Chieflain." A pleasant chat was held with General Thumb, and then a step brought us to that long drawn-out specimen from the Celestial Empire, Chang, the Chinese glant. He is said to be nine feet in height, and the undersigned is inclined to believe it, for he seemed more than that. He is, differently from most giants, finely propertioned, and is a good specimen of manly physique. Going from these human eccentricities, we come to the massive ox, the giant sea-lion, the huge rhinoceros, the herd of twenty camels of various sizes, from the baby to the ones with the full-sized hump: the long-necked giraffes, whom Mr. Hutchins said looked like Carl Schurz; the twenty-two-hand-high horse, and lions, tigers leopards, panthers, bears, kangaroos, monkeys, ostriches, and other things in great profusion. Among things never seen before is the BABY KANGAROO, who pops its little head out from the maternal sac and looks around in wonder at the curious sort of a world he has got into. Then there are two cub lions about the size of young puppies, who were playing in the cage like sportive kittens. On entering the vast tent in which the circus performances take place a scene was witnessed which certainly must have gladdened the heart of the enterprising manager. With the exception of the three rings there was nothing to be seen but a sea of heads, so closely were the people packed. The character of the audience was quite noticeable, embracing a large number of the families of the DIPLOMATIC CORPS, Cabinet Ministers, Senators, and men of lesser note. The grande entree, which is the most complete and elaborate that was ever witnessed, proved two things-the large corps of peformers and the fact that Barnum has secured a first-class band. Usually circus bands have an uncertain, wheesey tone, strong on the brass but weak in reed instruments. This is large, exceptionally well balanced, plays with skill, and the selections are good. Don't know who the leader is, but he is a musician and a capable director. The performance was Nachman was excused from jury duty, and the excellent, the tumbling the leaning the petit jury discharged until Thursday next.

Massachusetts Regiment, which had just arrived the strength of the form Boston by steamer. The Pawnee then Messrs, G. T. Dunlop and W. T. Snyder. excellent; the tumbling, the leaping, wire walking, the trapeze acts, the juggling, the graceful and reckless riding, the trained stallions, performing oxen, and the elephants followed so quickly, and so many were going at the same time, that one could hardly follow the different acts, and the only criticism that could be made would be that-which is rarely made upon a circus-there was too much of it. Among the many performers were Mme. Elsie Dockrill, the empress of the arena; Misses Cordina. Emma Lake, Mattie Benedict, the French Troupe Davene, Joseph Leon's Rajodi troupe, Frank Melville, the daring rider; the Boisset brothers, and others, whose names are not remembered. The clowns are all funny, but the silent man, who, like the Lone Fisherman, wanders everywhere, in every body's way, and don't say a thing, caused the most intense merriment.

THE VETERAN BARNUM himself made his appearance in the ring, and, in a neat little speech, thanked the vast audience for the patronage bestowed, and urged that the children and ladies should patronize the morning performance to-day. This is really the proper thing to do, and all ladies and children who can possibly do so should certainly attend the morning entertainment. After the performance the city of tents which surrounds the mammoth exhibition was visited, the stock was inspected, and their accommodations for cooking and living were looked into. The number of people employed in this immense establishment can hardly be estimated, and, to properly control and manage it effectively requires almost the same order of executive skill as it does to handle an army.

THE CROWD LAST EVENING was even greater than at the afternoon performance, and no tickets were sold after half past seven clock. At that hour it was estimated that fully 15,008-persons were seated in the vast canvas enclosure, yet so admirable were the arrangements that no disorder prevailed to mar the pleasure of any one. The first performance to-day will be at ten o'clock this morning, and in order to accom- it done, because the District chemist reports that modate the crowd the ticket-office will be opened at nine o'clock. It has been decided to keep the menagerie and tents open longer than usual in order that every visitor may have time to in-, spect their contents. It has been found necessary to increase the scating capacity of the large tent, and, despite the crowd present last night, every one was comfortably scated. General Sherman and a party of friends occupied seats in the private gallery and evinced great pleasure at the

A TALL INTERVIEW.

A Talk With a Nine-Story Chinaman by Our Six-Foot-Six Reporter.

The six-foot-six reporter of The Re-PUBLICAN was ordered to interview Chang, the greatest of all the giants, and who is, without loubt, the most remarkable of all the giant attracions of Barnum's monster combination. Chang converses in twenty languages. Having the advantage of the reporter by nineteen languages the conversation was conducted in English. The interview began in this way:

"Mr. Chang, allow me, the giant of THE REPUB-LICAN reporters, to get the use of your ear for a moment. First, allow me to welcome you to the Chang smiled, and, after remarking that he was tired sitting down, having just arrived from New York, he said he preferred to stand up. Standing on a chair the reporter proceeded to ask him what he thought of the city, that being the usual question to start off with.

"I have seen nothing of it yet; but I hope to before I go away. I am certain, however, to see a Ladies' and Misses' Fancy great number of its people. The giant's lot is not a particular happy one. Though I have been in all the great cities of the world, I have seen but little of them, except their people. My managers have a way of keeping me under a canvas or indoors, which prevents me from seeing as Twentieth streets northwest, and for laying a sewer much of cities as I would like. It has always been my desire since I have been in this country to visit Washington and see the public buildings, some of which, the Capitol in particular, being the greatest structures in the world."

AN HISTORIC DAY.

THE NINETEENTH OF APRIL, 1861.

Recollections of Twenty Years Ago-The Attack on the Sixth Massachusetts Regiment in Baltimore - The Expedition to Destroy the Norfolk Navy-Yard.

There is no month in the year that is fruitful in historic anniversaries as the esent month of April. It was in this month that he first gun in the rebellion was fired; it was in April that the war closed. To-day is the anni- ger, junior warden. ersary of the firing upon the Sixth Massachusetts tegiment during its passage through Baltimore on its way to the defense of the National Capital. The excitement that was created in this city was nothing to the thrill that went through the heart of the loyal North when it was known that blood had actually been spilled in Baltimore. When Mr. Lincoln issued his call for seventy-five thousand men, every Northern State promptly responded, but it was reserved for the old Bay State to dispatch the first regiment to aid in the Nation's defense. This was the Sixth, and when the news that her brave boys had been attacked and two had been killed reached Boston the writer well remembers the intense excitement that prevailed, and more men immediately volunteered than of the active and prominent officials of this church could possibly at that time be accepted. In this District preparations had been previously taken by General Scott against any outbreak here, for the major portion of the people were in full sympathy with the South. The City Given Up to Daneing-Balls by Catholic Societies.

During the penitential season of Lent social pleasures are forbidden to the devout, and the advent of joyous Easter is signalized by merrymaking and social enjoyment. The evening of Easter Monday is usually observed by the Irish and Catholic societies by a ball, and last evening all the available halls in the city were occupied by dancing-parties, and pleasure ruled the hour. At Marini's Hall the Knights of St. Matthew gave a very enjoyable sociable, which was largely attended. The success of the evening was largely due to the efficiency of the following gentlemen: Master of Ceremonies, Louis J. Gill; ballet master, James J. Roche; assistant ballet master, Richard Malahey; floor committee, J. Donnelly, J. R. Johnson, J. Venable, W. C. Clements, John Hawkshaw, M. McDonough; reception committee, Calvin Nash, chairman; Dr. Harry Douglass, J. Brennan, H. R. Maloney, J. R. Johnson, C. F. Mackin, F. W. Venable; committee of arrangements, John Hawkshaw, chairman; J. J. Roche, R. Malahey, L. J. Gill, J. Donnelly, J. Venable, J. Brennan, C. Nash, M. McDonough, J. R. Johnson, H. The Knights of St. Peter and a large number of and passed an evening of great social enjoyment. The following gentlemen contributed greatly to the pleasure of the evening: Master of ceremonies, Joseph T. Jennings; ballet-master, George J. Hilbus; assistant ballet-master, A. Langley; floor managers, J. P. Glancy, M. Flynn, Walter Miller, F. Graham, R. M. Lacey, and R. M. Smithson; reception committee, W. F. Crouch, J. R. Clemonts, P. Houlin, D. Long, W. O'Nelle, and A. Repettie: committee of arrangements, M. Flynn, R. M. Lacey, R. M. Smithson, J. F. Gates, R. D. Gates, D. Porter. and J. F. Horne; Lewis H. Lanman, chairman; J. B. Fitzhugh, secretary,

At St. Joseph's Hall, the Knights of St. Columbkill gave a very successful dance, which was largely attended. The members of the congregation of St. Peter's parish gave a sociable and dance at St. numerous, and everything indicates complete Peter's Hall, which was a very enjoyable occasion.

A Bridge Problem. The District Commissioners have addressed a letter to First Comptroller Lawrence, wherein they detail the decayed and unsafe condition of the bridge across the James Creek Canal at M street southwest; state that the needed repairs will cost not less than $3,000, and that it would be more economical to replace the old structure with a durable bridge of iron, which would cost between $4,000 and $5,000. As the appropriation for repairing bridges is too small to justify this expenditure, and before any appropriation could be made available the bridge would have to be closed against travel, the Commissioners ask if this is not a case of emergency and whether they would be authorized to make a contract for building a bridge, payable from the contingent

The Hiberniaus' New Officers. The following named gentlemen were last night elected officers of the Washington City Hibernian Benevolent Society, No. 1, for the ensuing year: President, William Crompton; first vicepresident, Thomas Irwin; second vice-president, James Linskey; recording secretary, Samuel Mc-Monigle; financial secretary, George K. Petty; treasurer, P. B. Dunn; trustees, James Bellew, P. Larkin, John Campbell, John Niland, B. McMorrow, and Michael McCormick; marshal, John Bligh, and assistant marshal, Richard Sweeney.

Who Was She? Over her bosom was a fichu of lace, laid over the shoulders and crossing in front; a bunch of red flowers was fastened at her belt; he. abundant black hair was brushed back with wellcounterfeited negligence; the toes of her extended reet were stuck into embroidered sandals, and her stockings were a true flesh color. A glorious creature she looked, truly, as she lay there in her studied carelessness of finery. But what I set out to say was that incense was burning at her side. Yes, fragrant smoke was rising lazily from an incinerating pastile in a brouze dish. This is a new freak of the girls. The scent bottle is put aside and rooms and clothes are perfumed with incense. If the practice lasts long the cannibal, who eats a fashionable girl will find her smoked through and through like a ham, but a great deal spicier .-

THE YALE GLEE CLUB. This organization will give a concert at Lincoln Hall to-night. They have met with great success, both musically and financially, during their Longley, and Past Eminent Commanders E. L. present tour, and the programme is most attractively arranged. The New York Herald, in noticing a concert by this club at Chickering Hall, says: "Every number was rendered with precision and dancers. THE PIRATES OF PENZANCE. The first presentation of this popular opera by the juvenile troupe organized by Professor Sheldon will take place at Lincoln Hall to-morrow night. The rehearsals have been careful and success. Seats may be secured at Metezrott's, A Virginia Railroad Extended.

The directors of the Virginia Midland Railroad, at their meeting in Baltimore last Saturday, definitely decided to extend the road from Danville, Va., via Mooresville, N. C. (with a connection to Charlotte), to Spartansburg, S. C. The North Carolina Midland Railroad has secured a right of way through the State, which has been surveyed and located, and, commencing at Danville, will run along the Dan River southwesterly to Leeksville, N. C.; thence to Madison, to Walnut Cove, to Winston, to Mocksville, to Mooresville, to Spartansburg, S. C. Mr. Robert Garrett officially announced that the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company was willing to subscribe its just quota toward the construction of the road. Colonel J. S. Barbour stated that at least $301,000 had been positively pledged by the citizens of North Carolina on condition that the city of Baltimore and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad would contribute amounts nate to the great benefits to be derive by them from the extension, and had no doubt that the subscriptions would be largely increased. It was decided to undertake the work of building the road as far south as Walnut Cove. N. C., a dis tance of fifty miles from Danville, the total length being 135 miles. It was stated that the probable cost of carrying the road that far would be about $750,000, or $15,000 per mile; and a resolution was passed pledging the Virginia Midland to supply all the necessary capital for the purpose not secured through the subscriptions to the stock.

Wax Flowers and a Church Debt. Within some nine months a movement for a new Episcopal chapel at Benning's was begun. The building committee were the rector, Dr. O. H. Brightwell, and Mr. B. F. Packard. The lot was the gift of Mrs. S. B. Sheriff. The chapel has been used for several months, and toward paying the small debt of $100 there has lately been an effort made by voting for a case of artificial flowers, made for the purpose by Mrs. M. C. Dean. On Saturday the polling of the votes took place, with the following result: Miss Millie Packard, 227 votes; Miss Helen Manning, 215 votes; Miss Mamie Glasscock, 117 votes, and Miss Baker, 64. Total, 623 votes, or $62.30. Besides the flowers voted for and won by Miss Packard, Mrs. Dean presented each of the unsuccessful candates with a lot of wax quite as haudsome as the flowers voted for. The debt is thus reduced to $30. It is hoped that by a similar effort—that of some waxwork to be voted for on May-1 the rest of the debt will be met.
